

Eremo della Giubiliana 5★

HISTORIC CONVERTED MONASTERY | EXCELLENT SERVICE

A stay at the Eremo della Giubiliana will make you part of this building's rich history, one which starts as far back as the 12th century amid the Hyblean plateaus of Southern Sicily. Beginning life as an ecclesiastical feudal hold of Renna, over the last 900 years the convent building has served as an Arab home, a defensive fortress and as host to the Knights of the Order of San Giovanni. Today, the building functions as a 5-star, luxurious hotel, though the heritage remains in the retention of authentic features.

Ancient pitch stone features prominently throughout the building and its 17 bedrooms and suites, once serving as cells in the convent. Each bedroom is unique, and although they feature modern comforts such as televisions and air-conditioning, they also have the old-style Sicilian furniture, iron beds and original household goods that define these gloriously authentic bedrooms. Local produce is an important concept at the Eremo, something experienced in the superb on-site restaurant, 'Don Eusebio', while a cooking course under the watchful eye of its head chef will teach you more about these local flavours.

A prime location allows for exploration around the area, with the fascinating old city of Ragusa and the beaches of Marina de Ragusa within a short drive of the hotel.
